In times of increasing geopolitical and trade tensions, Slovakia and Czechia remain a risk-free destination for investments and business ventures. The sustained economic growth of these two economies has been driven mainly by continuing inward investments in the automotive and electronics sectors and strong integration into global value chains. To sustain this expansion both countries are moving towards more sophisticated and innovative manufacturing, including digital transformation. At this seminar, you will have a chance to explore the countries' potential of highly skilled workforce, as well as their capacity to innovate and adopt new technologies. The presenters will also pay particular attention to the introduction of opportunities in other potential sectors, such as ICT, e-mobility, pharmaceuticals & medical technology, aviation & space, data centres, etc.

Both countries offer a competitive value proposition for the post-Brexit Europe.
